<sup>1</sup> A formally constituted community group is an organisation which is not an incorporated organisation and rather a voluntary or community group. These organisations need to have a written constitution which sets out the rules for how the organisation is run. If your organisation is not formally constituted, for help setting it up guidance can be found at: Help and guidance | NCVO and How to write your charity's governing document \(CC22b\) - GOV.UK.

- ☐ To the best of my knowledge, no one from this organisation is a staff member or volunteer at the RAF Museum.
